

Atarfil, 26 de febrero de 2018

Dear Customers:

We are pleased to announce the acquisition of Garden City Geotech assets; as part of our strategic plan, this is a bold step into the future of our collaborations.

Atarfil began its industrial activity in 1995. Its growth over the past 23 years has been constant, stemming from the referrals of our client base and those of other collaborators and partners. The growth and development of our professional staff have evolved in a similar manner to the progress of our quality and service standards. As a result of those efforts, we have experienced good growth over the past years. This has been in no small way also directly related to the success our clients have had in their business and progress pursuits.

We have decided to expand Atarfil organization, in order to improve the service and support towards our historical customer portfolio and to develop further market collaborations in different areas of expertise in the future.

This acquisition matches our hopes to continue growing within the same philosophy that we have developed since the creation of our company, and continue the tradition we have for excellent service, deep expertise, and an environment our clients and associates want to be a part of.

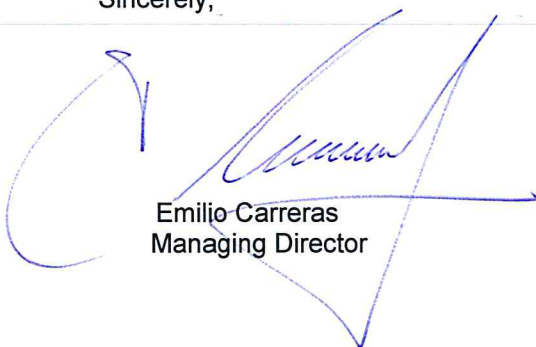

We would like to emphasize that there will be no change in the high standard support we provide and our sales team will remain at your disposal to continue our ongoing commercial relationships. You can have our absolute assurance that there will be continued delivery of high quality products.

The complementary nature of the Garden City Geotech acquisition is expected to enable us to raise our strengths by combining a solid local expertise and presence in the Australian market, integrated within the Atarfil business model. We are planning to integrate the existing Australian structure to ensure our best local support in all APAC region.

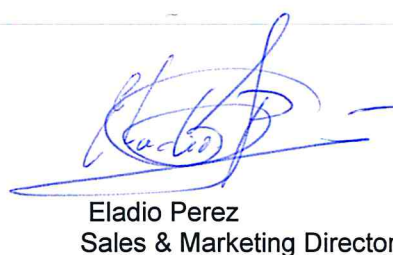

To give you some high-level insight into Atarfil plans, we believe a strategically-aligned local structure in Australia will best drive local customer service, increasing the choice and availability of Atarfil products, whereas we continue improving the technical support you have come to expect from Atarfil, aligning all our departments and workforce to face the new challenges that the market demands.

We sincerely thank you for your past and future support and invite you to continue joining us for our common developments.

Sincerely,

Emilio Carreras
