

A photograph of a person in a red climbing suit and helmet, equipped with ice axes and crampons, ascending a steep, textured glacier. The glacier's surface is uneven and shows signs of erosion. A blue rope is visible, extending from the climber down the ice face. The overall scene is dramatic and highlights the scale of the glacier compared to the human climber.

Amazing Images of Glaciers Being Covered in White Geotextiles

